

Meet Natalie Lyle

Natalie is a part of the Early Intervention team at RMHS and a lot of her work involves follow-up with families and providers to ensure that each child has the best chance of success. Natalie works with each family to provide resources and answer questions while working through the evaluation, service planning and therapy process with their child.

Natalie has been a part of the RMHS team for more than eight years. In that time, she has held different case management roles and has seen a lot of change at RMHS. One of the positive changes is that each year the RMHS Mill Levy program provides more and more resources and support for families and it has been wonderful to be able to offer that help. It is great to be able to say yes to families and offer things above and beyond the norm.

A career focused on helping people was always what Natalie wanted, and her case management role is a great fit. More recently, Natalie has had the opportunity to do more outreach for families with the goal of informing parents and other non-medical professions that they can self-refer and do not have to rely solely on a doctor to get their child evaluated for early intervention services.

“Seeing families become more confident and self-sufficient when they are advocating for their child is one of the most rewarding parts of my job,” Natalie said.
